MESSAGE OF THE PRESIDENT

and House of Representatives;

To express gratitude to God, in the name of the people, for the preservation of the United States, is my first duty in addressing you. Our thoughts next revert to the death of the late President by an act of parrieldal treason. The grief the nation is still fresh; it finds some solace in the consideration that he lived to enjoy the highest proof of its confidence by entering on the renewed term of the Chief Magistracy, to which he had been elected; that he brought the civil war substantially to a close; that his loes was deplored in all parts of the Union; and that foreign nations have rendered justice to his memory. His removal cast upon me a heavier weight of cares than ever devolved upon any one of his predecessors. To fulfil my

The maintenance of the Union brings with it the support of the State governments in all beir right;" but it is not one of the rights of only State government to renounce its own place in the Union, or to nullify the laws of the Union. The largest liberty is to be maintained in the discussion of the acts of the Federal Governnecession of the acts of the Federal Government; but there is no appeal from its laws, except to the various branches of the Government teelf, or to the people, who grant to the memors of the Legislature and of the Executive Departments no tenure but a limited one, and in the treatment of the rest of the people of the peop nat manner always retain the powers of re-

Certainly the Government of the United States is a limited government; and so is every state government; and so is every state government a limited government. With is this idea of limitation spreads through every term of administration, general. State, and numicipal, and rests on the great distinguishing principle of the recognizion of the rights of man. The ancient republics absorbed the indicated in the State, prescribed his religion, and controlled his activity. The American system cets on the assertion of the equal right of every near to life, liberty, and the pursuit of rappless; to freedom of conscience, to the culture and exercise of all his faculties. As a consequence of the consequence of the culture and exercise of all his faculties.

States, with proper limitations of power, are essential to the existence of the Constitution of the United States. At the very commencement, when we assumed a place among the Powers of the earth, the Declaration of Independence was Confederation: and when "the people of the United States" ordained and established the Constitution, it was the assent of the States, one by one, which gave it vitality. In the svent, too, of any amendment to the Constitution, the proposition of Congress needs the confirmation of States. Without States, one great branch of the legislative government would be wanting. And, if we look beyond the letter of the Constitution to the character of our country, its capacity for compreheading within its jurisdiction a vast continental empire is due to the system of States. The best security for the perpetual existence of the States is the "supreme authority" of the Constitution of the United States. The perpetuity of the Constitution brings with it the perpetuity of the Constitution brings with it the perpetuity of the States: their mutual relation makes ne what we are, and in our political system their connexion is incissoluble. The whole cannot exist without the parts, nor the parts without the whole. So long as the Constitution of the United States endures, the States will endure; the destruction of the one is the preservation of the other; the preservation of the needs the destruction of the preservation of the other.

I have thus explained my views of the mu-

the other.

I have thus explained my views of the mutual relations of the Constitution and the States because they unfold the principles on which I have sought to solve the momentous questions and overcome the appalling difficulties that met me at the very commencement of my administration. It has been my steadfast object to escape from the sway of momentary passions, and to derive a healing policy from the fundamental and unchanging principles of the Constitution.

But if any State neglects or refuses to perform its offices, there is the more need that the Gen eral Government should maintain all its author ity, and, as soon as practicable, resume the ex-ercise of all its functions. On this principle by almost imperceptible steps, sought to restore the rightful energy of the General Government and of the States. To that end, Provisional Governors called, Governors cleeted, Legislatures casembled, and Senators and Representatives chosen to the Congress of the United States. At the same time, the Courts of the United States. At the same time, the Courts of the United States as for as could be done, have been reopened, so that the laws of the United States may be enforced through their agency. The blockade has been removed and the custom-houses re-established in ports of entry, so that the revenue of the United States may be collected. The Postoffice Department renews its ceaseless activity, and the General Government is thereby enabled to communicate promptly with its officers and agents. The courts bring security to persons and property; the opening of the ports invites the restoration of industry and commerce; the postoffice renews the facilities of social intercourse and of business. And is it not happy for us all that the restoration of each one of these functions of the General Government brings with it a blessing to the States over which they are extended? Is it not a sure promise of hermony and renewed attachment to the Union that, after all that has happened, the return of the General Government is known only as a beneficence?

The next step I have taken to restore the c n-titutional relations of the States, has been an invitation to them to participate in the high office of amending the Constitution. Every patriot must wish for a general amnesty at the earliest epoch consistent with public safety. For this great end there is need of a concurrence of all opinions, and the spirit of mutual conciliation. All parties in the lata terrible conflict must work together in harmony. It is not too much to ask, in the name of the whole people, that on the one side, the plan of restoration shall proceed in conformity with a willingness to cast the disorders of the past into oblivion. to cast the disorders of the past into oblivion; and that, on the other, the evidence of sincerity in the future maintenance of the Union shall be put beyond any doubt by the ratification of the proposed amendment to the Constitution, which provides for the abolition of slavery forever within the limits of our country. So long as the adoption of this amendment is delayed, so long will doubt, and jealousy, and uncertainty prevail. This is the measure which will efface the sad memory of the past; this is the measure which will efface the sad memory of the past; this is the measure which will end capital, and security to those parts of the Union that need them most. Indeed, it is not too much to ask of the States which are now resuming their places in the family of the Union to give this pledge of perpetual loyalty and peace. Until it is done, the past, however much we may desire it, will not be forgotten. The adoption of the amendment reunites us beyond all power of disruption. It heals the wound that is still imperfectly closed; it removes slavery, the element which has so long perplexed and divided the country; it makes of us once more a united pesple, renewed and strengthened, bound more than ever to mutual affection and support.

The amendment to the Constitution being adopted, it would remain for the States, whose

The amendment to the Constitution being adopted it would remain for the States, whose powers have been so long in abeyance, to resume their places in the two branches of the

each of you for yourselves, of the elections, returns, and qualifications of your own members.

The full assertion of the powers of the General Government requires the holding of Circuit Courts of the United States within the districts where their authority has been interrupted. In the present posture of our public affairs, strong objections have been urged to holding those courts in any of the States where the rebellion has existed; and it was ascertained, by inquiry, that the Circuit Court of the United States is would not be held within the District of Virginia during the autumn or early winter, nor until Congress should have "an opportunity to consider and ect on the whole subject." To your deliberations the restoration of this branch of the civil authority of the United States is therefore necessarily referred, with the hope that early provision will be made for the resumption of all its functions. It is manifest that treason, most flagrant in character, has been committed. Persons who are charged with its commission should be pushshed and the laws may be fully windicated; the truth clearity established and affirmed that treason is a crime, that traitors should be pushshed and the flense made infamous; and, at the same time, that the question may be judicially settled, finally and forever, that no State of its own will has the right to renounce its place in the Union.

The relations of the Secretary of the Interior explains the exerting quarted against by appropriate legislation, within the limits of the free circulation of the Besch state ought to be sterly guarded against by appropriate legislation, within the limits of the constitution of the Besch state ought to be sterly guarded against by appropriate legislation, within the limits of the free circulation of the Besch combile on the Patent Office and the Pension Bureau the Constitution of the Patent Office and the Pension Bureau the Constitution of the Patent Office and the Patent Office and the Patent Office and the Patent Office and the Patent Offic for the status of slavery. The freedman cannot fairly be accused of unwillingness to work as long as a doubt remains about his freedom of choice in his pursuits, and the certainty of his recovering his stipulated wages. In this the interest of the employer and the employed coincide. The employer desires in his workmen spirit and alacrity, and these can be permanently secured in no other way. And if the one ought to be able to enforce the contract, so ought the other. The public interest will be best promoted, if the several States will provide adequate protection and remedies for the freedmen. Until this is in some way accomplished, there is no chance for the advantageous use of their labor, and the blame of illsnecess will not rest on them

I know that sincere philanthropy is earnest for the immediate realization of its remotest view, might raise alarm, will quietly settle themselves.

Now that slavery is at an end or near its end, the greatness of its evil, in the point of view of public economy, becomes more and more apparent. Slavery was essentially a monopoly of labor, and as such locked the States where it prevailed against the incoming of free industry. Where labor was the property of the capitalist, the white man was excluded from employment, or had but the second best chance of finding it, and the foreign emigrant turned away from the region where his condition would be so precarious. With the destruction of the monopoly, free labor will hasten from all parts of the civilized world to assist in developing various and immeasurable resources which have hitherto lain dormant. The eight or nine States nearest the Gulf of Mexico have a soil of exhuberant fertility, a climate friendly to long life, and can sustain a denser population than is found as yet in any part of our country. And the future indux of population to them will be mainly from the North, or from the most cultivated nations in Europe. From the sufferings that have attended them during our late struggle let us look away to the future, which is sure to be laden for them with greater prosperity than has ever before been known. The removal of the monopoly of slave labor is a pledge that those regions will be peopled by a numerous and enterprising population, which will vie with any in the Union in compactness, inventive genius, wealth, and industry.

LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 6, 1865.

ment by filling up the ranks to eighty-two thousand six hundred, if the circumstances of the country should require an augmentation of the carmy. The volunteer force has already been reduced by the discharge from service of over eight hundred thousand troops, and the Department is proceeding rapidly in the work of further reduction. The war estimates are reduced from $616,240,131 to $33 $14 461, which amount, in the opinion of the Department, is adequate for a peace establishment. The measures of retrenchment in each Bureau and branch of the service exhibit a diligent economy worthy of commendation. Reference is also made in the report to the necessity of providing for a uniform militia system, and to the propriety of making suitable provision for wounded and disabled officers and soldiers.

The revenue system of the country is a subject of vital interest to its honor and prosperity, and should command the earnest consideration of Congress. The Secretary of the Treasury will lay before you a full and detailed report of the receipts and disbursements of the last facal year, of the first quarter of the present facal year, of the probable receipts and expenditures for the other three quarters, and the estimates for the other three quarters, and the estimates for the year following the 30th of June, 1866. I might content myself with a reference to that report, in which you will find all the information required for your deliberations and decision. But the paramount importance of the subject so presses itself on my mind that I cannot but lay before you my views of the measures which are required for your deliberations and decision. But the paramount importance of the subject so presses itself on my mind that I cannot but lay before you my views of the measures which are required for your deliberations and decision. But the preservation of the good character, and. I might almost say, for the existence of this people. The life of a republic lies certainly in the energy, virtue, and intelligence of its citizens; but it law of a nation, and the domestic interpretations of that law, are the measure of its duty as a neutral; and I feel bound to declare my opinion, before you and before the world, that that justification cannot be sustained before the tribunal of nations. At the same time I do not advise to any person attempt at redress by acts of legislation. For the future, friendship between the two countries must rest on the basis of mutual justice.

From the moment of the establishment of our Constitution, the civilized world has been of residence to the establishment of inceptal side in the control of the country of the gentle of residence in the country of the second of the country of the second of the country of the second of country of the second of country of the country of the second of country of the country of the second of of the den on the industry of the country, to be discharged without unnecessary delay.

It is estimated by the Secretary of the Treasury that the expenditures for the fiscal year ending the 30th of June, 1866, will exceed the receipte $112,104 947. It is gratifying, however, to state that it is also estimated that the revenue for the year ending the 30th of June, 1867, will exceed the expenditures in the sum of $111,682,818. This amount, or so much as may be deemed sufficient for the purpose, may be applied to the reduction of the public debt, which, on the 31st day of October, 1865, was $2,740,854,750. Every reduction will diminish the total amount of interest to be paid, and so enlarge the means of still further reductions, until the whole shall be liquidated; and this, as will be seen from the estimates of the Secretary of the Treasury, may be accomplished by annual payments even within a period not exceeding thirty years. I have faith that we shall do all this within a reasonable time; that, as we have amazed the world by the suppression of a civil war which was thought to be beyond the control of any Government, so we shall equally show the superiority of our institutions by the prompt and faithful discharge of our national stress of the country, and for information respecting the details of its management reference is made to the annual report of the Commissioner.

I have dwelt thus fully on our domestic the world, to refit, and so to renew their depredations. The consequences of this conduct were most disastrous to the States then in rebellion, increasing their desolation and misery by the prolongation of our civil contest. It had, moreover, the effect, to a great extent, to drive the American flag from the sea, and to transfer much of our shipping and our commerce to the very Power whose subjects had created the necessity for such a change. These events took place before I was called to the administration of the Government. The sincere desire for peace by which I am animated led me to approve the proposal, already made, to submit the questions which had thus arisen between the countries to arbitration. These questions are of such moment that they must have commanded the attention of the great powers, and are so interwoven with the peace and interests of every one of them as to have insured an impartial decision. I regret to inform you that Great Britain declined the arbitrament, but, on the other hand, invited us to have insured an impartial decision. I regret to inform you that Great Britain declined the arbitrament, but, on the other hand, invited us to the formation of a joint commission to settle mutual claims between the two countries, from which those for the depredations before mentioned should be excluded. The proposition, in that very unsatisfactory form, has been declined.

The Usited States did not present the subject as an impeachment of the good faith of a power which was professing the most friendly dispositions, but as involving questions of public law, of which the settlement is essential to the peace of nations; and, though pecuniary reparation to their injured citizens would have followed incidentally on a decision against Great Britain, such compensation was not their primary object. They had a higher motive, and it was in the interests of peace and jastice to establish important principles of international law. The correspondence will be placed before you. The ground on which the British Minister rests his justification is substantially that the municipal law of a nation, and the domestic interpretations of that law, are the measure of its duty as a pretted with the substantial declined us to the formation of a joint commission to settle unity of the Senate to-day:

The Commissioner of Customs is conviaced from the character of the reports which he is daily receiving from the Canadian frontier that his action in employing female detectives there was judicious, and will be of great benefit in the exposure and arrest of the female smugglers who have recently been so extensively engaged in the contraband trade between Canada and the United States. Not one female smuggler now crosses the line where twenty crossed before, and merchants along the border suspected of having formerly been engaged in the contraband trade are closing their stores and selling out. sider what opportunities might present them-selves, what combinations might offer to pro-tect ourselves against designs infinical to our form of government. Another smuggling dodge has just been detected. An unusual number of coffins have been brought across the line of late for interment on the American side. That throngs of amingrants that crowd to our shores are witnesses of the confidence of all peoples in our permanence. Here is the great land of free labor, where industry is blessed with unexampled rewards, and the bread of the workingman is sweetened by the consciousness that the cause of the country "is his own cause, his own safety, his own dignity." Here every one enjoys the free use of his faculties and the choice of activity as a natural right. Here, under the combined influence of a fruitful soil, genial climes, and happy institutions, population has increased fifteen-fold within a century. Here, through the easy development of boundless resources, wealth has increased with two-fold greater rapidity than numbers, so that we have become secure against the financial vicissitudes of other countries, and, alike in business and in opinion, are self-centered and truly independent. Here more and more care is given to provide education for every one born on our soil. Here religion, released from political connection with the civil government, refuses to subserve the craft of statesmen, and becomes, in its independence, the spiritual life of the people. Here toleration is extended to every opinion, in the quiet certainty that truth needs only a fair field to secure the victory. Here the human mind goes forth unshackled in the pursuit of science, to collect stores of knowledge and acquire an ever-increasing mastery over the forces of nature. Here the national domain is offered and held in millions of separate freeholds, so that our fellow-citizens, beyond the occupants of any other part of the earth, constitute in reality a people. Here exists the democratic form of government, and that form of government, by the confession of European statesmen, "gives a power of which no other form is capable, because it incorpo The election for municipal officers takes place in this city to-day.

It is also represented that, after committing this cutrage and murder, the whole force attacked successively five mail stations along the route, which they destroyed, and, taking possession of the live stock along the line of their devastations, departed in a southeasterly direction. The official details of the above have also been placed before Gov. Cummings. Where, in past history, does a parallel exist to the public happiness which is within the reach of the people of the United States? A proclamation from Mayor Tom requesting a suspension of business in com memoration of Thanksgiving day, is published WOOD'S THEATER-MR. AND MRS. CHARLES

Kean.-These distinguished artistes met with with a grand reception at Wood's Theater on flowing. Shylock and Portia as impersonated and Mrs. Kean, gave general satisfa tion. We were present but a few minutes, and are unprepared to discuss the merits of either character. Another vast audience turned out last evening to witness Macbeth. It was well nut upon the stage and cleverly enacte oughout. We are free to confess that My Kean did not meet our expectations; but we can say with equal candor that he is a good, it not a great, actor. His enunciation is often too rapid and indistinct, which mars the effect of his colloquies and soliloquies. The critical audience before him last night evinced a knowledge of this; but, at the same time, they could not fail to perceive the traces of dramatic greatness in Mr. Kean's general conception and execution of the part. That he has been equal to severest tests of the drama, is unmistaka ble. That he is the first living artist, we do no eve. Mr. Kean does not, we imagine, arrogate to himself any such distinction reputation and that of his sire are in no peril when separated from such epithets. He belongs to a class of actors whose fame will never suffer by the corroding touch of time. No thanks would be given us for over-estimating that fame, and seeking to poise Mr. Kean at a giddy height, when a lower altitude shows serves the admiration of all more for his schol arly attainments and excellence of personal character than for his histrionic ability. We a close analysis of Mr. Kean's Macheth had w the time. That impersonation, forgetting the errors or inabilities of articulation and a cer tain want of vigor, bespoke the true artist. The shortcomings we have pointed out will be less apparent in Hamlet, which is announced evening. Mrs. Kean gave us a life-like delineation of Lady Macbeth. Her conception nortal author in this part is perhaps anequaled by any actress of the present day sed into every speech a strength of tone, a precision of accent, and a power of ac tion seldom outstripped in her more youthfor days. We are sorry that want of tis space forbids our making citations to exhibit the great force and beauty of her genius in the role of Lady Macbeth. She was frequently in terrupted by applause. The splendid acting of Mr. J. F. Cathcart and Mr. George Everett, n the parts of Macduff and Banquo, rendered the play an eminent success. But whilst you praise or blame, as occasion may require, the actors on the stage, may we not hope that you will pay your respects also to the management of the theater. As for instance, our lovers of the drams are now enjoying the acting of two of the most celebrated tragedians this country has produced, and the orchestra and their music would not be fit for a decent troupe of negro minstrels. MAYON'S OFFICE, LOUISVILLE, Dec. 5, 1865.

To the General Council:

Gentlemen: The contract for building the Market street railway has been prepared by the Assistant City Attorney and presented to me for execution in accordance with your resolution, which I have declined to execute for reasons which I deem it my duty to report to your honorable body. Since the passage of the resolution by your body, I have learned through reliable sources that certain improper influences had been used to effect the passage of the said resolution, and that one member of the Common Council has said to several gentlemen, who have funished me their allidavits of the fatt, that he received a large reward for his vote in favor of said resolution. I deem it due to the Council and the citizens of Louisville to have the matter presented to the Council for investigation before completing the contract, believing as I do that the Council will deem it due to their body to purge it of corruption and venality, in properly regarding the interests of the citizens of Louisville, which have been intrusted to tie eir keeping. I am ready to submit to the Council the affidavits which impeach one of the members of year body in this transaction, when called upon, and am prepared to furnish the names of several additional citizens, who, I am informed, are also cognizant of the facts and are ready to testify before your body, and I, therefore, respectfully submit this information before executing said contract, as a reason for its non execution. ing before your body, he becomes a party in interest, and, under the charter, would not have a vote, and that, in this case, if such you's excluded, the said resolution has not received the requisite vote to pass it over my veto.

Again, I am informed by the Assistant City Attorney, and many other eminent legal gentlemen of the city, that Mr. Henderson has no right to sign his name for an unincorporated company, unless he produces written authority from every member of said company; that, to make his signature for a company valid, he must be duly elected President thereof, and it must be duly incorporated.

For these reasons I herewith submit the facts in the case to your honorable body before proceeding further in the matter.

In addition, I would state that Mr. Henderson The Governor also vetoed a stay ceeding further in the matter.

In addition, I would state that Mr. Henderson has demanded and received from me the writings containing the concessions that he, by the ordinance, was first onliged, as the President of the Louisville and Portland Railroad Company, to grant to the city. I transmit herewith the report of the Inspections of the Penitentiary, and invite your attention particularly to the suggestions therein contained. The new structures erected in place of those destroyed by fire, and those ordered to be removed and replaced with suitable buildings, are now nearly completed. seek to cover the past with forgiving charity, and promote the harmony and union so essential to our happiness and progress. Those who fought the battles are for peace. Those who fought the battles are for peace. Those who rursed their courage at a distance from danger, "to keep it warm," only ask time to cool. The war has determined the impracticability of secession, and it only remains for the judiciary to decide that secession is treason, to have the subject forever and finally adjusted. This adjudication should properly be had in the case of the chief of the rebellion, to make it a precedent for all time to come. It is understood to have been wisely determined to hand Mr. Davis over to the civil tribunals, where a decision will settle the legal estimate of secession, and determine whether it be treason or a right. This will end the trial of questions by military courts which are properly for civil adjudication, and leave nothing for military courts to determine but questions of civilized warfare. That we may contribute to would be entitled thereto, and the discrimination just and proper. To forgive a man who does not ask it nor crave it, and restore him to rights which he had f rfeited, would be to offer a bounty to wrong; but to forgive those who seek it, and who give assurance of future allegiance, is the humanity of patriotism.

The Government of the Union is founded upon the existence of States. The existence of States presupposees State rights. Without the States there could be no United States formed upon the basis of republican government. At States presupposees State rights. Without the States there could be no United States formed upon the basis of republican government. At the foundation of that Union is this distinctive, well marked feature of a united republican government—that each State shall form its own organism, with the single restraining right of the General Government to guarantee a republican form. This is the feature which, being preserved, will forever prevent the only remaining danger to our republican government—centralization. The Federal or united sovereignty can only require that a State shall have a republican form of government; and can only interpose to prevent a State of the Union from adopting a monarchy, or other form of government than a republican or people's government. If the State Government be republican in form, the right to direct its details is exclusively with the State, and wholly without the powers of the Federal Government. One of the right scared to this form of Government, and which is panoplied by constitutional guaranties, is the right of each State to determine for itself who shall be eligible to office and who shall exercise the elective franchise. So carefully guarded is this fundamental feature of our Government, that those to be elected to Federal offices by the perple are remitted to the respective State regulations. Members of the House of Representatives to Congress are to be chosen by those in the respective States who are entitled to vote for the most numerous branch of the State.

The attempt to destroy republican government is treason. The effort to centralize is treasonable to our republican government, is but the counterpart of the rebellion, which sought to destroy by disintegration, and which has been so successfully repressed. The counterpart must also be crushed ere rebellion will be effectively crushed. The Federal Government is a government of United States, "ordained and established" by "the people of the United States," in order to form a more perfect union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity," ings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity."

To preserve the rights of the States, without surrendering the just rights of the people in their national authority, is the wise and statesmanlike policy of the present Chief Executive of the United States. Every true friend of republican government wast feel hiered of republican government wast feel manlike policy of the present Chief Executive of the United States. Every true friend of republican government must feel himself constrained to the support of such an Administration. Under his prudent care order emerges from the chaos of revolution; harmony supersedes the babel of recent conflict; good fellowship arrests the course of passion and prejudice; and union firmly binds the elements of State and nation. It is a source of gratification to all lovers of civil liberty to witness the steadiness of purpose with which he pursues, with unbending will, the accomplishment of the desired end, the entire restoration of civil government.

An important question is still open for your consideration, thrown upon us as one of the unavoidable rulings of the rebellion. Though the proper solution of all the details connected therewith is difficult, yet, at this day, it must be apparent to every man, whatever may have been his previous hopes and former convictions, that the extinction of slavery within the United States and it is dependencies is one of the legic of rebellion. It tests not in human power to reinstate or longer preserve slavery. How shall we dispose of this question? Shall we fold our hands and refuse to act, and content ourselves with sullen submission to unavoidable results, or shall we manifest our just the requisite number of States to make it part of the Constitution will ratify it. What is to become of the negro? This will be solved by time and the natural laws governing population and labor. The question, if alone, will solve itself_or rather the future suggest the proper solution. The question what shall become of him constitutes neit an objection nor an argument against the pro-posed amendment. He will be free; what more, the future must develop. What shall become of us? Shall we refuse to make wise provision of us? Shall we refuse to make wise provision for our present because we cannot see or determine our future? The question is as apt in the or e case as the other.

Having been compelled by my position to investigate the question, in order to determine what course a just and prudent statesmanship dimanded, I have given you the sincere convictions of my mind, and only ask that you will, with like integrity of purpose, consider the important bearing which your action is to have upon the present and future good of our State.

son, for acting collector on one of the street railroad cars and collecting passage, was found guilty and sentenced to one year's confinemen in the State Prison. In the cases of Newton Ash, charged with larceny, Mollie Jackson, same offense, and Louisa B. Lloyd, stealing, the juries returned verdicts of not guilty and they were released In the case of John Lee, charged with per jury, the testimony and argument were heard and the case submitted to the jury. At the time of the adjournment of the court they had failed to agree upon a verdict, and the case was laid over until this morning. This man, it will be remembered, swore that he was worth $1,500 when questioned as to his ability as security, when all his property, it is alleged, was in his wife's name. The cases of Wm. Baker, J. Davis, W. Simp son, and Jos. Furniss were continued until the next term of the court. Furniss was admitted to bail in the sum of $100.

POLICE PROCEEDINGS-Tuesday, Dec. 5th .-Fines for drunkenness and disorderly conduc were imposed as follows: Ann Ott $5, Wm O'Neal $5, John Joyce $10. Mary Warren, stealing two mattresses. Bail in $500 to answer. Wm. Kennedy, assaulting T. Foley with in tent to kill. Continued till Thursday. Rob't Etherton, suspected felon. Discharged James Small, stealing a cart and harness from Henry Dennis. Discharged. Preston Anderson (f. b. c.), stealing $332 from

H. Erwin. Bail in $800 to answer. Lloyd Brown (f. b. c.), stealing a coat from Jas. Drysdale. Bail in $250 to answer. Moses Lawson (f. m. c.), assaulting Mrs Fisk. Continued till Thursday.

Semuel Waltrace (f. m. c.), stealing clothing from Susan Strother. $400 to answer. John Mitchell, fugitive from justice from Indiana. Continued till to-morrow. L. Myers, stealing a mule from Mrs. Antle.

Discharged. The Florence correspondent of the Indeendence Belge says that a singular discovery has been made in a church in one of the fan bourgs of Milan. A statue of Saint Magdalen, which has long been famous for weeping in the presence of unbelievers, was recently removed. n order to facilitate repairs for the church. It was found that the statue contained an arrangement for boiling water. The steam passed up into the head, and was there condensed. The water thus produced made its way by a couple of pipes to the eyes, and trickled down upon the cheeks of the image. So the wonderful miracle was performed. Jefferson county, Va., is inclined to rebel against annexation to West Virginia. At a late meeting in Charlestown, it was resolved that two persons from each magisterial district of the courty be appointed for the purpose o canvassing their districts for signers to petitions to Congress and the Legislature, and at the same time to receive such contribution in money as the citizens may be willing to make toward defraying the expenses of defending themselves against annexation to West Virginia.

The revenue received from the custom and from internal taxes since the commence ment of the present fiscal year justifies the belkf that the entire revenue for the year will smount to four hundred millions of dollars. This was the estimate of Mr. Hooper and other members of the Committee of Ways and Means at the late session, and in excess of the estimat which Secretary Chase had made in his last report.

MAGNIFICENT PAINTING .- One of the finest oil paintings we have seen in the city is on exhibition at the store of Mr. J. Sues, on Fourth street. Unfounded .- We are truly glad to contradict the reported drowning of the mate and six men of the steamer Morning Star. The following is from an authentic source: LOUISVILLE, Dec. 5, 1865.
To the Editors of the Louisville Journal:

THIS CLOTHES-WASHER HAS NOW BEEN BI fore the public about four years. During the present year we have manufactured and sold sever-hundred to our customers, and, after a full and thicross test, we have abundant reason for believing it is it best Washer in America; hence we challenge the work to produce its equal. to produce its equal.

The Kentucky Washer took the first premium at our last State Fair over the celebrated Doty, the crack washer of New England, the Hydraulic, the Union Washer, and others of less note; since which time, in several fair and thorough contests with the best of these machines. the judges declided that the Keutucky would wash double the amount of clothing in a given time, with much less wear to the fabric, and with a great deal less labor to the operator, than the next best washer. To the Editors of the Louisville Journal:

In your issue of this morning I see it stated that on Wednesday last the mate and six men of the steamer Morning Star were drowned in the Mississippi.

As the steamer in question was hard aground in the Ohio on Thursday last, near Shawaee town, III., as I am informed by letter of date December 1st, from a friend, who was a passenger on her, and was, moreover, en route to and not from Memphis, it is simply impossible that the catastropte could have happened. As those reported drowned may have anxious friends in the city, I send you this information, that their washer. The Kentucky will annually save its cast in the wear and tear of clothing, and save double its cost in labor. It is simple, durable, and most conveniently arranged. The Wringer statched to the Kentucky Washer is the most durable, most easily adjusted, and the very best thing of its kind ever invented. Send for a circular. BRINLY. DODGE, & HARDY.
